“No person was ever honored for what he received. Honor has been the reward for what he gave.”

- Calvin Coolidge

On Saturday, July 23, 2016, I found myself trying to hold back the tears as I watched our nation's flag expertly folded by an honor guard in preparation for presenting it to the grieving mother of Sgt. Eric Lohlein. As the flag was presented, my tears could no longer be held back when I heard the words spoken: "On behalf of the President of the United States, the United States Army and a grateful nation, please accept this flag as a symbol of our appreciation for your loved one's honorable and faithful service."

Boys Ranch alumnus Eric Lohlein joined the U.S. Marine Corp. upon graduation from high school.

Eric lived at the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch from 1987-1992. Upon graduation from our local high school, he joined the Marine Corps and later transitioned into the Florida Army National Guard, where he continued to serve his country with honor until a vehicle accident resulted in his tragic death on June 30, 2016.

As I stood in line with all those in attendance, waiting to offer my condolences to his grieving mother and fiancée, I could not help but see how many of the individuals in the crowd were either former ranchers themselves or former staff. Eric's former cottage parents were there, and I heard them speak of how much they loved Eric and looked upon him like a son.

Florida National Guard Sargeant Eric Lohlein was an active member of the Boys Ranch Alumni Association.

As I spoke to his mother, she told me how much Eric loved the Boys Ranch and how he considered it his home. This was not the first time that I had heard this from a grieving mother, daughter, wife or friend of a rancher who had passed away. Yet, just like every other time, it gave me comfort in the knowledge that we are doing what God intended when he provided a dream to those Florida Sheriffs so many years ago to begin a home for children in need.

As you all know, we are living in turbulent times. It seems like every day we are hearing of another tragedy, not only in this country but across the world. There are national debates going on throughout this country regarding race, immigration, poverty, women's rights, gun control, medical insurance, police tactics, religion, child welfare and so much more. There has been so much negativity on television, radio and social media, and the cry of "Let's make America great again" has been a hot topic with politicians on all sides. With all of what appears to be despair in the world, the statement of this grieving mother that "Eric loved the Boys Ranch and he considered it his home" filled my heart with joy.

You see, while the world is in turmoil and national debates rage and differences of opinions are shouted about the greatness of "America," I take pride that, since 1957, we have been making a difference in the lives of children. I take pride in the knowledge that after graduation, many of our boys and girls go on to serve in every branch of our nation's Armed Services. I take pride in the fact that our young men and women have served with honor in Vietnam, the 1991 Gulf War, Afghanistan and Iraq. I take pride in knowing some of our ranchers went on to become members of the law enforcement and corrections professions, and are now doing their part in protecting and serving our communities. I take pride in knowing so many of our ranchers have attended college, seeking a higher education. I take pride that the majority of our boys and girls who called the ranches their home continue to be productive, law-abiding citizens.

I can also say with a joyous heart that since 1957, we have been doing our part, with the support of generous donors and dedicated employees, to make America great by serving thousands of children in need.

When you read or hear news about how bad everything is in the world today, I pray that you too will find comfort in the knowledge that, as a supporter and donor of the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches, you are making a difference in the life of a child. In knowing that there is, within the Youth Ranches, sanctuaries for abused, neglected, troubled and impoverished children who will be loved and cared for in a place that they too, can call home.

Finally, please keep our men and women who serve this nation, either in our military or our law enforcement agencies, in your prayers. In these difficult times, these brave men and women continue to place their lives on the line to protect and serve us and our children!

God bless,

Bill Ryz

Setting Goals for Success

The stage was set: 12 campers on a large, teetering, wooden platform. The goal? To keep it level for no less than 20 seconds. While on the surface, the task may sound simple, but the endeavor requires an incredible amount of teamwork to accomplish successfully.

For the campers, that is an important lesson. “Being a good leader is learning to be a good follower,” Senior Program Leader Mr. Phillips says as he coaches from the sidelines.

Each camper thought they were the individual key to solving the problem single-handedly. They were not willing to compromise to work together.

As you would imagine, with the entire group moving back and forth at the same time, the seesaw rocked chaotically up and down. Each one was shouting out their own ideas, making it impossible for anyone to listen. It wasn’t long before several of the campers wanted to call it quits and be done with the exercise.

“How did the other group do it?” one of the young girls asked, wondering if the goal could even be accomplished. “They concentrated, they committed, they communicated, they cooperated,” Mr. Phillips replied. “You’re a team. You have to decide.”

It was then that things started to sink in. The campers all stopped moving. As a unit, they sat down and began to take turns making suggestions. They finally started working as a team to meet their goals.

Through the woods, on the other side of camp, more campers were learning about setting goals at a separate obstacle course. The high-ropes course raises campers above the ground and has them walking across suspended wooden poles and balancing on a tightrope-style wire course. “It teaches self-esteem and goal setting,” explained Ms. Shepherd, Camp Director and Certified Ropes Instructor. “If your goal is just to get to the top of the ladder, that’s fine. If it’s to do the whole course, that’s great.” She urged ranchers to “Set your own goals. It’s a challenge by choice.”

Each participant had to set a goal for how much they wanted to accomplish and how far they wanted to go—how much of their fear they would choose to face. “I was a bit scared,” Katherine, one of the campers, admitted as she took off her helmet and walked away from the course after a successful run. “But I was brave and tried my best.”

As their peers cheered them on from below, each one took to the catwalk. “My goal was to finish,” Breyana said with excitement as she skipped over to the group. “The hardest part was staying balanced,” she added with a smile. “It feels great to have completed it!”

When campers aren’t doing challenge courses at the camp, they can often be found at the springs. Deleon Springs claims to be the site of the fountain of youth and, on any given summer afternoon, it is definitely the hot spot for some of our youth.

Even on these days, the learning and cooperation never stop. Campers Jarod and Andrew eagerly loaded into canoes and prepared to hit the water. Their counselor, Mr. P.C., instructed them on how and where to sit and explained the two-paddle system with one paddle in front and another in back. Mr. P.C. sat in the back and took the lead as the stern man, controlling the direction of the canoe. Jarod filled the role of bowman—the person at the front of the canoe responsible for paddling. Without both paddlers, and without communication, the canoe wouldn’t go anywhere. Without a goal destination, they would simply be adrift on the water.

For these campers, each day and each event is an accomplishment. At the high-ropes course, campers learn to set goals and to challenge themselves. The canoers learned to set a goal and cooperate to get where they were going, and the campers on the seesaw had to communicate, cooperate and commit; they couldn’t create balance on the board without those behaviors.

With all the lessons learned, the hope is that at the end of the week, they take these skills with them outside camp to set goals and find a better balance in their everyday lives. ★

Creating Leaders at Summer Camp

Arts and crafts is not just fun time but a teaching time. Cheyenne enjoys working through the projects that help teach patience and perseverance while having fun.

The Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches has a four-pillar philosophy. “Work, study, play and pray” are the foundation of what the Youth Ranches teach our students. The hope is that they take these principles with them after they graduate to become successful and productive members of their communities. You can imagine what a reward it is when our students want to give back and work with Youth Ranch programs. It is a great opportunity to see the “work, study, play, pray” philosophy in action. This year, several Youth Ranch graduates decided to work at our summer camps.

One of the former students-turned-counselors is Cheyenne. Cheyenne is spending her first summer after high school giving back by working at Youth Camp. Before she came to the Youth Villa, she had a bad attitude and just wanted to do her own thing. With the help of the Youth Ranch, she was able to rewrite her own story into one of success. Cheyenne has turned her grades around and excelled in school. In the fall, she plans to continue her education and pursue a future in nursing.

It is no surprise that one of Cheyenne’s favorite parts of camp is watching the kids succeed. “I love seeing the kids accomplish things they thought they couldn’t,” she says as she helps one of her campers weave a rope bracelet during arts and crafts.

For Cheyenne, camp was always about helping, whether with a task or just to brighten up her day. “The staff was always so great,” she recalls. “When I was having a bad day, they would always lift my spirits.” Now Cheyenne hopes to be that bright spot of positivity in the camper’s lives. For her, camp just isn’t a fun memory. It isn’t just a job. “I don’t like camp,” Cheyenne says with a grin. “I love it.”

Another Ranch kid-turned-leader is Yabey took his culinary passion on the road to summer camp before starting school this fall.

Yabey. For Yabey, issues with authority brought him to the Boys Ranch. “I didn’t get along with my parents,” he explains. “I didn’t know what to do with myself, but the Ranch was there to help.” Yabey wanted to return the favor. When he found out that Caruth Camp needed help in the kitchen this summer, he jumped at the opportunity.

Not only did Yabey want to help out, he also has a passion for food that he began to cultivate during his senior year of high school. The teen, who plans on attending culinary school in the fall, is actually an award-winning chef! He placed second in a recent state competition. For Yabey, this summer has been a win-win situation: “I get to work with kids and I love getting to work in the kitchen.”

While Jacob spends his time on campus at the Boys Ranch as a lifeguard (story on page 10) this summer he pitched in to help at Caruth Camp in the kitchen as well. “They needed help,” Jacob says, as if there was never a moment’s thought about jumping in and working at camp. He was ready and willing to do whatever was asked of him. From washing dishes to cooking to helping serve food, Jacob jumped in to lighten the load.

For these former students, the Youth Ranches permanently left footprints in their walks of life. The impact has been so profound that they choose to find a way to give back even as they set out to start their journeys into adulthood. For their former caregivers and mentors, it has been rewarding to watch these teens grow from kids to coworkers. They are the embodiment of the mission of the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches, succeeding in the community with a passion for helping others. ★

Jacob is at home in the kitchen making meals for hungry campers.

From Campers to Counselors

Mr. Delville talks with a camper about his next dive off the dock.

For many kids summer camp leaves a lasting impression. The kids attending camp with the Florida Sheriff Youth Ranches are no exception. Each day and year after year, camp teaches the value and importance of setting goals while developing social and leadership skills. The impact of the daily camp life leaves such an impression that many times, the kids will go from camper to counselor to help continue that legacy. This year, two former campers rose to the challenge and decided to take on roles of leadership.

Mr. Delville is a Leader in Training (LIT). The teen has been attending camp since he was 10 years old. His cousin is a police officer. His cousin saw that the Mr. Delville could use a positive influence as a young person and something to keep him out of the trouble for the summer. For Mr. Delville, the rest is history. For the past six years, he attended as a camper, but this year, he wanted to do more—he wanted to learn to become a better leader. “Being a LIT has really helped me continue to develop leadership skills,” he said of his position. His summer working at camp has also provided him with nonstop fun. “I like getting to meet new kids and getting to know them. They are so funny; some of them tell jokes and some of them have these unique talents. I love watching them grow and have fun.” Mr. Delville is already looking forward to next summer, when he can continue to grow as a leader and continue working with kids.

For Ms. Frenchko, going from camper to a Counselor in Training (CIT) has been a dream come true. Literally. Since she was a kid, she has wanted to work at a summer camp. “When I was younger my camp counselors influenced me a lot. I wanted to grow up to be just like them,” she said, thinking back to her time as a camper. “I went through some really rough times, and the staff and counselors were there for me. They never failed to make my day better with positivity or even just a smile. I want to be that person for someone else.”

Ms. Frenchko stops for a quick pic before heading off to lunch with her campers.

“I see myself in a lot of these kids,” she adds. “It’s great to see them growing and learning, laughing and smiling.”

For Ms. Frenchko, getting to know the kids and seeing the positive impact that camp has with her own eyes is her absolutely favorite part of being a Counselor in Training. “I see myself in a lot of these kids,” she adds. “It’s great to see them growing and learning, laughing and smiling.” For the 17-year-old, next summer can’t get here soon enough so she can come back, work at camp and keep living out her dream.

We are grateful to our donor family for making camp possible. Camp definitely changes lives and affects our entire community! If you ever wonder what kind of long-term effects Youth Ranch programs like summer camp have, the proof is in the people who come back. The opportunity to change lives for the better and give back to the community is too good to pass up for these teens. There is more to camp than having a good time. It is also about crafting a community and creating leaders. ★

Putting Service First: The Honor of the Guard

“People didn’t think I could do it,” states Jacob proudly. “I wanted to prove them wrong, and I’ve always loved the water.”

Jacob’s journey to becoming a lifeguard is nothing short of impressive. Not only was there a lot of swimming—12 laps back and forth in the pool, to be exact—but he also had to tread water for two minutes, then perform the extraction of an actual person simulating an emergency, physically removing them and saving them from the pool. Out of the water, the teen had to pass three separate written exams consisting of more than 150 total questions, watch a series of videos, and learn numerous lifesaving techniques.

For Jacob, it was all worth it. His favorite part of the job is the reward of watching kids who didn’t know how to swim gain the knowledge and skills to become confident swimmers.

Jacob is a walking testament to the power of what the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch and their tireless staff can do for children. He came to the Ranch when an endless series of parties caught up with the teen and he fell far behind in school. He realized that he needed help.

Heavily influenced by the philosophy of the Boys Ranch, Jacob has developed a genuine spirit of service, helping out whenever there is a need. During the hot summer months, he can usually be found on guard by the pool for a couple of hours each day, positioned front and center between the deep end and the shallow side of the pool—a good vantage point is a key part of a lifeguard’s success.

Lifeguarding isn’t always easy. “It’s hard getting kids to listen sometimes,” Jacob confesses. Taking extra care to make sure everyone at the pool is following the rules can be taxing, but safety comes first. As a lifeguard, he maintains that the best lifeguards never have to really save anyone. “If you make sure to instruct the swimmers and enforce the basic rules, you won’t have any bigger issues,” he says. Aside from breaking up some roughhousing, Jacob’s lifeguarding watch has been pretty smooth sailing.

His helping nature and heart for service has also guided his future career plans. The 18-year-old high school senior has plans to attend the police academy and pursue a career in law enforcement.

For Jacob, whether he is at the pool, in the kitchen or looking to the future, it is always an honor to serve. ★

Meet Angel

At the Youth Ranches, it's hard not to want to share every story of tremendous growth our kids experience in such a short amount of time in our care. The resilient nature of children in general is inspiring enough, but when it comes to our senior Angel, she really takes the cake.

Growing up, Angel lived with her grandmother who suffered from health issues. Given her condition, it made it hard for her to raise and provide adequate support for Angel. In school, Angel was severely bullied and, because of that and challenges in her home life, her grades began to suffer. Angel became very depressed and closed-off which had a major impact on her relationships with others, her grandmother being the most affected. At the age of 16, Angel decided that she needed some sort of intervention. After doing her own research, she came across the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches.

Two years later, Angel has brought her GPA from a 0.5 to a 3.0 and has even gotten involved in school activities. She was determined to graduate on time with the rest of her class, so she finished a total of 18 classes in her senior year alone! Angel has also developed close bonds with her cottage parents, made many friends on campus and mended the broken relationship with her grandmother. She has won multiple academic awards, including the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches Program Director Award, which is the most prestigious award that a child in our care can receive.

Angel's overall growth and development has been nothing short of a miracle. She is now 18 years old and has huge plans for her future. She is living in Sebring and pursuing a degree in marine biology at her local state college as part of the Youth Ranches Scholarship Program.

When you ask Angel what the Youth Ranches means to her, she says its hope. Before coming to us, she had no aspirations for the future because she didn't believe in herself. Having seen the work she can produce when she puts her mind to something, Angel has found a whole new sense of self-confidence that she never knew she was capable of. In only two years, Angel has turned her life completely around.

Our donor family helps provide the right environment in which kids can thrive! A warm, stable home with caring adults; educational support; and active teaching of job skills makes the difference in the lives of the children we serve.

It has been said that children heal faster than adults do and, at the Youth Ranches, we are reassured of this on a daily basis. Angel is living proof. ★

Marine Conservation and Education

If sending a group of kids out for a day with sharks sounds like a recipe for disaster, normally you would be right. However, with the help of Shark Conservation Center President Dylan Faulkner at Eckerd College and his team, fun and education were the only items on the menu for this day.

The Shark Conservation Center(SCC) is dedicated to educating the community about the importance of protecting and preserving marine wildlife. When it comes to educating the community about conservation, there is no better place to start than kids.

The SCC invited the Youth Ranch at Safety Harbor to learn about sharks and other marine wildlife as a part of an outreach program. So far, the program has been met with rave reviews by our children and the scientists alike.

The first experience with the SCC found a group of residents from Safety Harbor traveling to Eckerd College to visit the marine biology students and team at their lab in person. The kids took on the role of junior scientists as the conservation team taught them about local wildlife and its importance to the local ecosystem.

Once the indoor educational program was over, it was time for a little hands-on training. The kids and the SCC team loaded up and went out to the beach near the Sunshine Skyway Bridge in Tampa ▲ Logan watches his fish as he learns about how to treat sea life.

Bay. There, the team and the kids were able to find numerous sea creatures, including seahorses and starfish. They collected these specimens, catalogued them and took them back to the lab to be studied by the marine biology students and Youth Ranch residents.

For the next trip, the Shark Conservation Team came to us, setting up a mobile lab at the Safety Harbor campus and enjoyed a pizza lunch with the kids.

Faulkner and his team could not be more excited to continue working with the residents at Safety Harbor. Dylan hopes he has inspired a kid or two to pursue a career in science or marine biology.

▲ Everyone listens as they get instructions about how to collect their specimens.

The team took a break over the summer, but once classes are back in session, the training will begin again, too. In the future, the Youth Ranches and the Shark Conservation Center hope to work with our older students on becoming certified in scuba diving.

Community partners in education help round out the lives of our students. We are fortunate to have friends in the community who want to share their talent, skills and abilities with the boys and girls in our care. ★

◀ Evan hit the highest heights in his education this year. He excelled over all the students and received the Academic Achievement Award from Learning Center Director Susan Moffat.

▲ Mary Claire received the Character First! Award from Unit Director Eric Dawkins. The pray pillar of our philosophy includes a moral and spiritual program. Mary Claire exemplifies a person who tries to live life by sharing good character and a spiritual grounding.

▶ Teaching young people how to work hard and the value of a job well done is important. Although Tyler was one of the smaller kids on campus at the Youth Ranch Bradenton, he was an example to everyone on how to approach work!

The Shining Stars of the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches

Our favorite time of year is when we recognize our students for their many accomplishments in daily life, school, work and personal growth. Each young person meets goals and conquers personal challenges throughout the year. However, there are still some who have met and exceeded their goals and for that, they receive recognition. We can't put all of them in the magazine, but here are some highlights from our recent awards events.

Each campus names its awards a little differently, but they all present awards based on our "work, study, pray and play" philosophy of care. ★ ◀ Kiera worked hard on her education, personal relationships and work skills this past year. Her dedication paid off with the Turn Around Award, presented by Unit Director Scott Halbach.

Program Director's Award Winners

The Program Director's Award is the most prestigious award presented to our children by the Youth Ranches. The recipient must show growth in all areas of Ranch life. Most of the recipients have extraordinary stories of how they achieved their success this year.

▲ Daniel received the Program Director's Award from Youth Ranch Safety Harbor Program Director Chuck Deitch. Daniel had a standout year in all areas of his life. He worked hard to prepare for graduation and his next steps as a young adult.

▲ Graduating senior Tyler Townsend won the Program Director's Award at the Boys Ranch. Most staff, and even some donors, talk about what an impression Tyler has made on them. He is a young man set to make an impression on the world!

▲ Youth Ranch Bradenton-Sarasota Program Director Doug Gillum presented Makenzie with the Program Director's Award. Whether she is working, playing or just building relationships, whenever you are on campus, you will inevitably come across Makenzie making her mark on campus life.

▲ Angel received the Program Director's Award from VP Program Brad Gregory. Angel completed 18 classes her senior year and still managed to participate in afterschool activities. She was in the running for salutatorian, but missed it by just few points. Angel is an example of determination!

Joey never thought he'd be a success in school, but at the Ranch something changed...

Slumped down in the chair, fidgeting with a pencil but not taking the test, Joey stared off into space. “Joey!” came the urgent call drawing his attention back to the task at hand. “Do you really WANT to fail?” If you keep this up, you surely will! It’s all up to you.”

He shrugged off the comment and repositioned his body over his paper. No, he didn’t want to fail...he just never expected to succeed. Everyone at home called him a loser, a slacker who would never amount to anything...maybe they were all right?

But something inside him stirred that day. He truly realized it was up to him. His success or failure would not be a reflection of his parents or his home or his circumstances. It reflected on him. It was his name and his future at stake. And, the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranch may be his one chance to prove this to the world!

Joey understood he was the one who could change things...so he did! He started paying attention in class and actually doing his homework. The praise from others began to flow. He also became more attentive to how he dressed and spoke to adults. “Yes, Ma’am” and ‘No, Sir” became a regular part of his vocabulary. Overall, he just became a much more likeable fellow and began to excel in all areas of ranch life!

Joey is like so many of our kids. They have been told they can’t achieve so they quit trying. They just shrug their shoulders and give up. Together, we can change that.

Right now, today, you can invest in helping a child believe they can do it!

Your gift, small or large, will give them hope for a brighter future through a good education, a safe and nurturing home and people who believe in them. So many kids need this wake up call. Please, please show them you care by sending your support right away. School is about to start and we need your help for kids just like Joey! ★

Thank You For Caring and Sharing!

Josh recently celebrated his graduation from the University of Tampa with his mother, father and sister.

A Second Chance

The beginning of Josh's story is like that of so many of the young people we serve. He and his sister were being raised by a single mother in Miami who was working diligently to make ends meet. However, while his mother was hard at work, Josh's grades began a steady decline, his disobedience reached a peak, and his relationship with his mother and sister hit rock bottom. Josh found himself roaming the streets and tangled up with a bad crowd. Academically, Josh's troubles became most evident when he failed his seventh-grade year.

Josh and his family were at their wits' end when someone suggested the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches. He soon found himself at the Youth Ranch Bradenton-Sarasota campus. "It was voluntary, but I really didn't want to be there," the now 24-year-old man admitted, recalling his feelings when he first came to the Ranch as a child. "I felt really alone—like I didn't belong."

Josh was born in New York and raised in Miami, so the shift from big cities to the smaller community of Bradenton was difficult at first. "It was a very different environment," Josh recalled. "I was upset." Without the hustle and bustle of city life and the distractions he had left behind, Josh suddenly found himself with the opportunity to think with a clear head. "I started doing a lot of reflection," he explained. "And I realized I had a lot of things to work on."

Not only did the staff begin to teach him life and social skills, they helped him get back on track academically. "The staff is so dedicated," Josh said. "They helped me learn how to stay focused." He began to excel academically. Earning the Student of the Year Award is an accomplishment Josh is proud of to this day.

After spending more than three years at the Ranch, Josh was ready to go home to his mother and sister. The lessons he learned at the Ranch were never far from his mind or his heart. "The Ranch really taught me how to handle things, mentally and emotionally," he said. "They taught me how to overcome adversity."

After leaving the Ranch, Josh's relationship with his family has also grown stronger, and he values it more deeply than before. He and his mother are closer than ever. His sister, whom he used to constantly fight with, now shares an incredibly tight bond. "Before, she was just a sibling," Josh adds. "Now, she's my sister."

Through the Ranch mentor and scholarship program, Josh was able to stay on track. He recently graduated from the University of Tampa with his bachelor's degree in Advertising and Public Relations. "The Youth Ranch has been with me every step of the way," Josh says with sincerity.

"They are a second family."

With the help of the Ranch and staff, Josh not only pursued his education; he has a career in banking. He began working part-time as a teller, and JP Morgan Chase offered him a full-time position after his graduation. He now has a career development path with the bank. His plan is to become a relationship banker and work with small businesses in the Tampa Bay area. "I love helping clients and developing relationships." Josh beams with excitement over his career and future.

His desire to help doesn't just end at work. Josh has also been volunteering his time with local charities, including Metropolitan Ministries in Tampa. "I just want to be the best that I can be," he says with purpose. "I want to do more for the community. I want to give back."

Josh definitely recognizes that he has been fortunate to have been given the opportunity to set things in the right direction all those years ago, and to receive the continued support of the Ranch. "Growing up is sometimes easier said than done," he says. "If you work with the Ranch, they will work with you. I feel really blessed to be where I am. I got a second shot. I'm fortunate." ★

Rancher Receives National Recognition

This year, Tyler Townsend of the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches was chosen as Council on Residential Education (CORE) Student of the Year. CORE presents a number of awards each year to philanthropists, activists, social workers and others who make the work of organizations like the Youth Ranches possible. They also recognize the achievements of the groups through the lives of the children they serve.

When Tyler came to the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch in 2009, he wasn't quite sure what his life would be like, but he was counting on it being different from what his family legacy might have in store for him.

Over the past seven years, Tyler has embraced the culture of the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches and worked diligently to prepare for his future. His exceptional work ethic inspires others to do the best job that they can do. His behaviors and actions mirror the advice and wisdom that he gives our other youth on campus. Even when Tyler has not always made the best decisions, he is always respectful, accepts responsibility and encourages others to learn from his mistakes.

Tyler receives CORE award from Boys Ranch Program Director Amber Friis.

Tyler takes pride in what he has accomplished in his life at the Boys Ranch. He once said, "The work that you do mentally is the hardest of all. The decision to show initiative when needed and leadership when expected; this type of work is what turns a boy into a man."

Congratulations, Tyler, for being chosen Student of the Year! ★

AWARDS, EVENTS & PRESENTATIONS

The New York State United Teachers – Teachers Retired in Florida (NYSUT-TRIF) Clearwater chapter long ago adopted the Youth Ranch Safety Harbor for special activities. This spring the group met one more time and made a special gift in support of our children before heading out for the summer. We appreciate their dedication to our boys and girls!

Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch Assistant Farm Manager Haley Eatmon accepts a registered red Angus bull from Mr. Joe Harper of Harper Farms. As Chairman of the Florida Cattleman's Association Foundation he has a mission to grow awareness and help build Florida's cattle industry. This bull will help us meet our goal to have 250 head of cattle for our boys and girls to work with as they build life skills, work skills and learn about how they can impact agriculture in Florida.

Sarasota County Sheriff Tom Knight and Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches Donor Relations Officer Mike Kiel proudly presented Mr. and Mrs. Michael Campagna with the Golden Star award. Their generous giving over the past 13 years has enabled us to serve needy and deserving children.

Suwannee Valley Electric CEO Mike McWaters presented a special gift to Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches President Bill Frye. SVEC is a great partner in our efforts to grow our boys and girls! They provide professional services to the campus, their team leads career day and safety activities, and they give back to help us complete our mission.

Volusia County Sheriff Ben Johnson makes a special presentation in support of the programs of the Florida Sheriffs Youth Ranches. Donor Relations Officer Debi Girard accepts the check from Sheriff Ben Johnson along with FSJR Director of Development Wayne Witczak.
